Report from the virtual meeting of the InnoHEIs Interreg Europe project participants (31.03.2020)

In these difficult times for us, the InnoHEI project is still ongoing in the virtual world. Eleven project partners discussed the preparation of their main analyzes during the virtual meeting on Tuesday March 31.

We are sorry that there was no study visit in Barcelona, where we were supposed to visit the most interesting higher education institutions together with our stakeholders and find out what universities are doing for research and innovation in the Catalonia region.

We hope that all partners met physically in the autumn in Val the Loire in France. Meanwhile, continue digital and online work on mapping research and innovation infrastructure by conducting region analyzes by each project participant.

InnoHEIs are also preparing to participate in the European Week of Regions and Cities, which will hopefully take place on October 12-15, 2020 in Brussels. The European Week of Regions and Cities is a great opportunity to highlight project results, promote good practices or exchange inspiration and experience with representatives of other regions.

We see each other again in real life. Stay at home!
